FUNCTIONAL ENDOSCOPIC SINUS SURGERY:

Endoscopic diagnosis and endoscopic functional surgery of nasal and sinus diseases have changed sinusitis treatment over the last 20 years. Extended applications have been developed, now covering tumorous lesions of anterior skull base, pituitary surgery and others.

The meeting is designed to familiarize the participant with the basics and the advances in diagnosis and treatment. The lecture series will provide the theoretical background for the endoscopic treatment concept. The technique itself will be demonstrated by videotapes, cadaveric dissection and, on the last day of the meeting, by live demonstration of endoscopic operations. Special lectures deal with extended applications like optic nerve decompression and endoscopic skull base surgery as well as image guided intraoperative navigation. A "four-handed" approach to pituitary tumors and beyond will highlight the Advanced Seminar.

In addition, for a limited number of 60 participants, laboratory dissection will be available, providing hands-on experience utilising endoscopic instruments and practising diagnostic and surgical procedures on anatomic specimens. KARL STORZ endoscopes and instruments will be provided for each participant.

As the number of participants is strictly limited by the number of anatomic specimens available, early registration is recommended. A come-first, serve-first registration policy will be applied.

On Saturday, a special ADVANCED SEMINAR will be offered: Difficult decisions, intraoperative situations, pitfalls, problems in postoperative care are interactively discussed with the audience (Like: Handling of complications, approach to diffuse polyposis, closure of CSF-leaks, optic nerve and orbital decompression, endoscopic tumor surgery, medico-legal issues). The advanced seminar can be booked separately and then includes the live-surgical-demonstrations in the morning.
